Capital Hears Roosevelt Might Take Action Before Returning From War Games Cruise; Warships Waiting To Evacuate Leaders of Loyalists.

END OF WAR IMMINENT, BELIEF

BULLETIN

BURGOS, Spain—(AP)—Nationalist Generalissimo Francisco Franco today held an army of more than 500,000 men ready for an attack on the remaining Spanish Republican territory should an unconditional Republican surrender be delayed.

(Compiled From Latest Cables)

Early American recognition of the Franco regime as the established government in Spain appeared a foregone conclusion today on the heels of the announcements yesterday by Great Britain and France to recognize the insurgent government rule.

President Roosevelt may, it was hinted in official quarters, instruct Ambassador Claude G. Bowers to present his credentials to Generalissimo Franco even before the chief executive returns from the naval war games, a dispatch by International News Service said.

Meanwhile, according to a United Press dispatch, a speedy end to the civil war was predicted with the announcement of the resignation of President Manuel Azana of Loyalist Spain.

In Washington the debacle in Catalonia and the virtual disappearance of a Loyalist government precipitated a swift change in the American government's attitude toward the Spanish civil war, officials admitted.

* * *

So long as the Loyalist government could maintain law and order and rule over a large portion of Spain, there was no question of American recognition of Franco, it was explained. In fact, as late as six weeks ago the British government was informed by Washington that a Franco victory would be considered "inimical" to the best interest of the United States because of its possible ill effect in Latin-America and of Italian and German intervention in Spain.

This was the word former British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden took back to London after his Washington visit. The United States also opposed Britain or France extending belligerent status to Franco which would have empowered him to enforce a sea blockade of Loyalist territory.

Only Two Left.

The British and French move left the United States with Soviet Russia as the only two major powers which have not recognized Franco's regime. Thirty-one countries, including Italy, Germany, Japan and several of the Latin-Americas, in addition to England and France have now recognized the new government.

Britain, France Waiting Next Move by Insurgent General as Speech Disturbs.

LONDON—(INS)—A pledge by Generalissimo Francisco Franco to reject "foreign intervention" in the new Spain he is creating was disclosed by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in the house of commons today.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—British and French government leaders got little comfort today from the speech in which Gen. Francisco Franco acknowledged recognition by the democracies of his Nationalist Spanish government.

The recogniiton cleared away the red tape of formality so that Britain and France could carry on an intensive drive to weaken German and Italian influence in

Second Relief Loan Exhausted, City Sees No Solution In Sight

'Marks Time' on Old Problem Until State Relief Law's Clarified; Feeds Needy on Credit as 12 Relief Workers Go Payless for Second Time in Month.

With the second loan for relief funds since Nov. 1, 1938, exhausted and no immediate funds in sight, city officials today faced the problem of providing food and fuel for its relief clients on credit.

And while the city was furnishing needy families with food and coal purchased "on the cuff," 12 city relief workers met another payless payday today, completing a full month without salaries and facing an indefinite period of similar payless paydays.

The payroll for city relief workers, which has been accumulating since Jan. 31 is now $1,015, and the city is no nearer a solution today than it was a month ago, City Auditor Paul Kelley said.

Kelley asserted that Mansfield, like other cities over the state, was "marking time" until the new emergency relief law is clarified and the $5,000,000 relief fund recently appropriated is made available to the communities.

There is no immediate relief in sight, however, unless the city can find a way to match state funds, dollar for dollar. While this requirement has been in effect for some time, Kelley said the city has been doing its matching "theoretically."

$68,500 Used Up.

The city borrowed $60,500 from Mansfield banks on Nov. 1, 1938, on authority from the state. However, a sum of $8,058 was borrowed on Feb. 1 and this is considered a "controversial loan" as the city council authorized it without special authority from the state, the auditor explained. An appeal for aid in having the state pay this has been sent by city officials to Richland County Representative Ralph Lutz and State Senator P. H. Rogers.

The second loan was exhausted recently and the relief bill for food and fuel goes steadily on at the rate of approximately $300 per day. This figure will decrease somewhat when the demand for coal drops with warmer weather.

Fugitive, Back In O.S.R., Says He Was Tired Of Roaming

"Tired of bumming around," Donald Russell, 22, fugitive from the Ohio State reformatory for nearly a year, walked into the office of Superintendent Arthur L. Glattke today in a voluntary surrender.

Glattke quoted the inmate as saying "I'm tired of it. I want to get it all over with and serve out my sentence."

Russell was committed to the reformatory March 10, 1937 from Summit county on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without owner's consent. His term was for one to 20 years.

He escaped March 6, 1938 from the institution's dairy barn.

Because of his voluntary surrender, Russell will receive only six months additional time for escaping. The customary penalty for fugitives is a year.

BORAH BUCKS

Says Increase in Air Corps Is Based on 'Jitterism.'

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Sen. William E. Borah of Idaho, ranking Republican on the senate foreign relations committee, today opposed the administration's proposed big increase in the army air corps on the grounds that it was based on "bluff and jitterism."

Borah told reporters that a good example of "jitterism" was the move to "decorate that sand dune on the other side of the Pacific." He referred to the proposal to spend $5,000,000 for harbor improvements at Guam, tiny American island possession 1,300 miles from Japan. That proposal was defeated in the house.

The veteran isolationist, who may take a leading part in the debate over the $358,000,000 defense bill now before hte senate, said that the army did not require 6,000 planes as proposed in the measure.

"They'd become obsolete before thep rogram could be completed," he said.

7 WITNESSES SUBPOENAED IN SHORTAGES

Marriott L[illegible] Will Testify Thursday in Jury Probe of 3 Cases.

SPEEDY ACTION PREDICTED

Prosecutor Looks for Brief Session in Inquiry Into Fund Discrepancies.

Fourteen witnesses, seven of whom will be asked to testify in an investigation of shortages in funds in three Mansfield and Richland county offices, had been subpoenaed today to appear before the county grand jury in a special session Thursday.

Those who will appear in the inquiry into the discrepancies will be Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, County Treasurer John E. Kolb, Dr. J. T. Gaskill, mayor of Plymouth; Elmer A. Zook, Irving Young, and C. W. Corbin, state examiners, and Leonard Wise, solicitor for the village of Plymouth.

3 Other Cases on Docket.

The other witnesses will be asked to testify in three other cases which have no connection with the shortages, County Prosecutor G. W. Marriott said.

Called by the prosecutor, the jury will probe shortages amounting to $4,259 in the Mansfield municipal court accounts, about $1,700 in the Mansfield conservancy district, and $2,698 in the accounts of A F. Marvin, former Plymouth village clerk.

The grand jury investigation is expected to be brief, the prosecutor predicting that it would be completed by Thursday afternoon.

One Charge Filed.

The discrepancies, uncovered in audits by state examiners, brought the dismissal of Allen K. Ports, municipal court clerk in Mansfield, and Russell K. Erdenberger, conservancy district tax collector. Marvin resigned and later pleaded innocent to a charge of embezzlement filed by Prosecutor Marriott. No charges had been filed today against Ports or Erdenberger.

Judge Kalbfleisch will appear in connection with investigation of the shortage at the city building since he appointed Ports to the clerk's post and dismissed him after the discrepancy was revealed.

Kolb will be called in connection with the conservancy district shortage. He named Erdenberger as a deputy treasurer in 1935.

Young is auditing the conservancy books at the courthouse, while Corbin was in charge of the examination at Plymouth and Zook conducted a special audit of the municipal court accounts.

Kolb today had placed Paul Mitchell, one of his deputies, in charge of the conservancy office pending completion of the audit.

The treasurer said he had taken no action to appoint another deputy to take Mitchell's place in his office. The conservancy office was still closed this morning.

The jury also will consider charges against Franklin Lewis of Shelby, accused of operating a car without the owner's consent, and Bruno Loeckel, charged with breaking and entering. A secret indictment in a non-support case also will be sought, Marriott said.

SPUR DRIVE FOR NLRB CHANGES

Critics Renew Campaign on Heels of Supreme Court's Decision Reversals.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The first major reverses suffered by the National Labor Relations board in the supreme court encouraged the board's critics today to press demands for new restrictions on its operations.

An official of the American Federation of Labor said "the supreme court decision in the Fansteel case is a justification of the policies of the AFL with regard to the labor board."

Senator Burke (D-Neb) declared the decisions were "excellent" and said they would bring support for proposals to amend the Wagner labor act, under which the board was set up in 1935.

Both Burke and the AFL have proposed changes in the act. Burke would make the law recognize specifically the rights of employers as well as employes in labor disputes. The AFL would attempt to set up legal safeguards against what it terms the board's partiality toward the CIO.

The court delivered its opinions yesterday in the midst of efforts by President Roosevelt to end the bitter rivalry between the AFL and the CIO.

Labor leaders on both sides speculated on the possible effect of the decisions on this movement, but first opinions were that it would not be of great importance, although the NLRB long has been an issue between the organizations.

Relief Head Quits as County Moves To Reduce Costs.

NORWALK —(AP)— J. T. Gogsett, Huron county relief commissioner, resigned today as the county commissioners moved to reduce relief administration costs.

The commissioners announced abandonment of the county relief office, established several years ago in a remodeled house. The commissioners and Probate Judge Luther VanHorn will administer relief through their departments in county courthouse offices.

Friendliness With Dictators Urged By Speaker at Institute

The United States must maintain friendly relations with the Latin American dictatorships and make our democracy so attractive that we can recommend it to them. Prof. J. Fred Rippey of the University of Chicago said last night in a talk in Mansfield Senior high school auditorium.

Substituting for Prof. Isaac J. Cox of Northwestern university, who was scheduled to speak on the Institute of International Understanding, Prof. Rippey said the trend is to democracy in Latin America although 13 of the 20 nations are ruled by dictators.

"The Latin Americans think their dictators are necessary evils, and they are forced to put up with them because of economic and social conditions," Prof. Rippey told an audience of about 700 persons.

"The Nazi influence is entering Mexico, Central and South America, but it is not very effective as yet because the Nazi nations lack the money for investments that would make them powers in Latin America," he explained.

"The United States and Great Britain have investments of from five to six billions each in the Latin American countries, while Germany and Italy have only a small part of that and are in no position now to enlarge their holdings," he said.

"It is my opinion that the peoples to the south of us will gradually be driven away from dictatorships by the examples of Hitler and Mussolini," Prof. Rippey said.

Indicating that our present policy toward Mexico and the other nations south of us is sufficient to retain our friendliness with them, he described the recent Pan-American conference in Peru as a "neutral gesture."

"At least no backward step was taken," he asserted when asked if the good-will conference had contributed to the cause of peace.

The Latin American dictatorships have existed for years with-

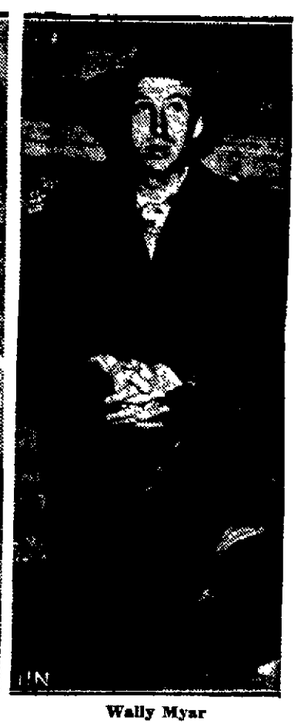
Dancer's Death Puzzles Police

Anya Sosoyeva



Wally Myar

With only a few clews to work with police in Los Angeles hunted the slayer of Anya Sosoyeva, 32-year-old Russian dancer who was seeking a career in the movies. Miss Sosoyeva, a San Franciso girl, was assaulted and beaten on the campus of Los Angeles City college as she was en route to the college auditorium to appear in a revue. Her partner in the skit was Wally Myar, 24, pianist and actor, into whose arms the beaten girl staggered. She died in a hospital shortly afterward. An examination of the dancer's tangled love affairs revealed to police today that she had kept a tryst with one of several admirers a few hours before she was fatally assaulted.

$25,000 Movie Quiz Prize Goes to Ex-Mansfielder

Mrs. Laura W. Carpenter, Barberton Widow, Winner of 2nd Award; Willard, Galion Women Also Victors.

Whatever question there may be of the slogan in the $250,000 movie quiz contest that "motion pictures are your best entertainment," a former Mansfield woman today was prepared to enthusiastically agree, for the contest brought her $25,000 in cash.

Mrs. Laura W. Carpenter, Barberton widow, who won second prize in the quarter of a million dollar contest, was formerly Miss Laura Race of this city and is a first cousin of Ralph E. Race, Penn avenue. She left here about 18 years ago.

Wins $500 at Willard.

The first prize of $50,000 was won by Mrs. Elizabeth Benincasa of San Francisco. Other winners in the smaller classifications, in this vicinity were Mrs. Ernest White, Willard, who won $500; Miss Evangeline Miller, also of Willard who was given one of the $10 prizes, and Miss Arvilla Emmenegger, Galion, who won $10.

Mrs. Carpenter is the mother of four children, Richard, of Cleveland, and Mrs. Leona Majors, Paul and Robert, of Akron. After being handed a check for $25,000 and being kept at the theater until 1 a. m. by newsreel cameramen, she was still "too shocked" today to do much talking.

But the children talked for her. "We're really more excited than mother," Paul said. She had been notified that she was to be at the theater as she had won one of the 5,404 prizes distributed over the United States, but we all thought it was one of the small prizes. None of us had any idea what the prize was until it was announced to mother on the stage of the theater."

Mrs. Carpenter, who said that she was "over 65," said that she would not take a trip or do anything extravagant with her fortune but that it would be used "for some good cause."

She is a grandmother. Her husband died two years ago.

The movie quiz contest was conducted by the motion picture industry and 2,185,000 answers were received. As about 40 per cent of all of these had the correct answers, judging was based largely on the best letters submitted on "Why motion pictures are your best entertainment."

Winners were announced on the stages of Mansfield theaters last night.

FACES CHARGES

DETROIT —(U.P.)— Homer Martin, one of two rival presidents of the United Automobile Workers union, was ordered today to stand trial before the union's CIO-supported executive board on charges that he conspired with the Ford Motor company to disrupt the UAW.

SETTLES DUST

Blizzard Welcomed by Farmers in 'Dust Bowl.'

LAMAR, Colo—(AP)—A blizzard-borne snowfall ranging in depth from six to 17 inches today anchored the travel-bent topsoil of the southwestern "dust bowl," home of the black blizzards of the drought years.

Lamar, subjected to two dust storms since an early January rain, received 17 inches of snow. Grateful farmers who had watched fall wheat grow spotty during recent dry weeks confidently planned to begin spring planting as soon as the ground soaks up the inch or more of new moisture.

Sleet fell through dust clouds last night at Texola, Okla., on the Oklahoma-Texas border, reducing visibility to zero.

MISSING CHILD RETURNS HOME

Girl, 6, Thought Victim of Kidnapers Spent Night on Ground.

LARCHMONT, N. Y. — (U.P.) — Lois Masterson, 6-year-old daughter of Frank C. Masterson, a former governor of the New York curb exchange, ended a 12-hour search for her today by approaching Police Chief William J. Keresey less than 100 feet from her parents' home and announcing, "I haven't been home."

Keresey, directing more than 100 searchers who had feared the missing child was a victim of kidnapers, had just left the home of the Mastersons after putting two bloodhounds on the trail.

Gravely announcing that she hadn't returned home after leaving school yesterday, the girl's clothing and her soiled face indicated that she had spent the night resting on the ground. A doctor said she had suffered "no ill effects."

BOY SENTENCED

'Baby Face Bandit' Gets From 10 To 20 Years.

TOLEDO —(AP)— Robert Culbertson, 17, Toledos confessed "baby face bandit," today was under sentence of from 10 to 20 years in prison for robbery.

The youth, who Toledo police said had bragged of his holdups, broke down and wept in his mother's arms as Recorder's Judge George Murphy passed sentence for a robbery here Jan. 17 in which an older brother, William, was shot to death by police.

Chief Acts To Notarize 5 Officers

Seeks to Speed Up Legal Formalities at Time of Arrests.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates will take steps immediately to notarize five officers of the Mansfield police department as a means of expediting legal formalities in making arrests and building up cases against offenders.

His action, he said today, is the indirect result of the recent dismissal of the Russell Tappan case in municipal court, although both Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch and Bates said today that there was "no controversy" about it.

Last Saturday, after the Tappan case had been dismissed for "lack of evidence," Judge Kalbfleisch criticized the manner in which the evidence had been obtained and the case prepared. Bates countered today with the statement that no one in his department was notarized to take sworn statements or affidavits at the time of arrest and it has always been a matter of locating municipal court clerks or the city solicitor regardless of the time of night.

"So far as municipal court is concerned this department has found it always ready to co-operate," the chief added.

"I'm not going to engage in any controversy over the Tappan case," the judge said, "My decision was based on the evidence submitted and the application of law which covered such evidence."

Solicitor Called.

City Solicitor Marion D. Ward said that he had been called a few times at night to come to police headquarters and make out an affidavit or to take a statement, and that he had always responded. Clerks in municipal court said they had never refused to respond to a night call from police.

Ward said he had suggested to the chief several months ago that officers in the department be notarized so that they could take sworn statements immediately after an arrest or in filing a charge, in order to speed up compiling evidence.

Bates said he had applied a year ago to have himself and four officers notarized, but was advised at that time to let the matter drop because of action of the Richland County Bar association against certain notary publics.

He said today that he had the forms for filing applications and would have them prepared for the secretary of state's office.

CLEARINGS UP

Bank Figures for Two Months Show Business Upswing.

Reflecting a definite upturn in retail business in Mansfield since Jan. 1, the city's bank clearings for the first two months of the year topped figures for the same period in 1938 by $1,025,000, the Clearing House association reported today.

Most of the gain was in February when clearings forged $668,000 ahead of figures for the corresponding month of last year.

The February clearings totaled $5,844,602 and boosted total clearings so far this year to $12,715,878, Ned Brooks, secretary of the Clearing House association, reported today.

If the present rate of increase continues throughout the year, clearings for 1939 will top the 1938 total of $74,000,000 by more than $6,000,000.

STEAMS TO AID OF FREIGHTER

NORFOLK, Va. —(INS)— The Coast Guard cutter Modoc was steaming to the assistance of the British freighter, Cumberland, aground on Frying Pan Shoals off Cape Hatteras, Norfolk Coast Guard headquarters announced today.

The Cumberland sailed from Hampton Roads, Va., Sunday with a cargo of coal. A call for assistance was received this morning. The Cumberland operator reported the ship was in no immediate danger. The Modoc was expected to reach her before 11 o'clock.

The Cumberland is bound for Havana. She carries a crew of 23 men.

Spreng, Banker At Loudonville Missing 9 Days, Causes Concern

Concern was expressed in Loudonville today over the whereabouts of M. H. Spreng, recently resigned vice president of the Farmers and Savings bank there and widely known in Mansfield, who vanished nine days ago.

Since that time, two communications have been received from him. His wife received a letter postmarked in Indianapolis and D. C. Nouse, cashier of the Loudonville bank, received a letter postmarked in Chicago.

Neither letter gave any hint as to where Spreng was going or concerning any plans for his return. The communication the bank cashier received indicated Spreng intended to enter a hospital. He had been in ill health for some time, his friends and family said.

Spreng, a brother of W. J. Spreng, 414 Park avenue west, had suffered a severe attack of influenza within the last two weeks.

The letter to the cashier, asked the bank's board of directors to elect a successor for his position as executive vice president, Nouse said. Directors accepted the letter as a resignation at a meeting on Feb. 23.

A routine check of banking records by state examiners has shown there are no irregularities at the bank, Nouse said. In the communication to his wife, Spreng said: "I owe the bank nothing," it was learned. Fellow officials at the bank said the institution's records and accounts were in "perfect order."

Mrs. W. J. Spreng, the missing man's sister-in-law, expressed the opinion this morning that Spreng is probably receiving treatment in a hospital and would return shortly. Her husband could not be reached.

WOODARD STAYS

Pen Warden Brands Reports He'll Quit 'Untrue.'

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Ohio penitentiary Warden James C. Woodard today branded as "untrue" rumors he would resign his post.

The rumors followed closely submission of a partial report on an investigation into conditions at the prison by William F. Amrine, new superintendent of corrections.

The investigation was started when Welfare Director Charles Sherwood took office. Sherwood said he had heard reports that discipline at the prison was lax and that drugs and liquor were being sold in the institution.

Sherwood today refused comment on the rumor that Woodard, who has been at the penitentiary for nearly 30 years, four of which as warden, would be asked to resign.

FIREMAN FACES ARSON CHARGE

Admits Building Fires For 'Thrill Of Putting Them Out.'

PAINESVILLE —(AP)— Sheriff James Moloney said today that Herbert E. Hollingshead, 39, confessed "thrill fireman," would be charged with arson tomorrow. Hollingshead, according to Moloney, admitted setting fire to five buildings, including the fire chief's barn, for "the thrill of putting them out."

Hollingshead, a member of the volunteer department at nearby Willobee, was jailed following an investigation by deputies and A. F. Gallagher, deputy state fire marshal.

HITS HOME TOWN

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—Col. Fred E Whitten, head of the Kansas City, Mo., Citizens league, described his home town as the "rottenest" governed city in the United States in a speech before the Cincinnati charter committee last night.

Whitten, unsuccessful candidate for mayor of Kansas City last year, spoke on behalf of the proportional representation form of electing city councilmen.

To Check Constipation Get at Its Cause!

If constipation has you down so you feel heavy, tired and dopey, it's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat the super-refined food most people eat, the chances are the difficulty is simple—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this common form of constipation is your trouble, eat Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran isn't a medicine—it's a crunchy, toasted, nutritious cereal. And it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular, day after day. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. CONVICT'S DAUGHTER + + +

By RUTH RAY KANE

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER SEVEN

It was raining when Lona came out of the department store, where she had retrieved her checked suitcaase; a drizzling summer rain that soaked her thin shoes in a few minutes, and made the jacket of her suit cling to her shapelessly. With listless disinterest she walked on and on, scarcely noting her direction, until she came, finally, to a "For Rent" sign in a window of a house sufficiently dilapidated in appearance for her purpose.

The room to which the whiny-voiced landlady conducted her was shabbier even than her memory of Mrs. Peterman's. It was on the third floor, with one dingy window, and scarred, rickety furniture she hated on sight.

"Two dollars," the woman told her, with a sharp eye on her wet, worn suit and sodden shoes, "paid in advance."

"Of course," she heard herself agreeing wearily. "In advance. I always pay in advance." And she gravely handed out two dollars of Jim Claridge's money.

When the woman was gone, she threw herself, wet clothes and all, prone on the grayish bedspread. Exhaustion, the anesthetizing exhaustion of despair, stole over her. Too tired even to shed the tears that were pressing like heated balls against her lids, she shut her eyes, and listened dully to the beating of the rain on the roof. If she could only lay here like this forever, and not have to think.

It was late afternoon before she roused, finally, to the knowledge that the rain had ceased and that she had had no lunch.

As she stooped to lift her suitcase to the one chair the room boasted, a telephone shrilled somewhere below and for a moment she stiffened expectantly, as she had been doing now for months. Always there had been hope in her mind at the sound of a telephone. She had left her address so many places. It was possible, someone MIGHT call.

Then she slumped again as she remembered. Nobody would be calling her here. Nobody knew where she was. And would tell nobody either, she thought, as the morning's bitterness flooded back. Not even Jim Claridge. He should not know what become of her. She wouldn't have him hunting her up and being kind to her again.

Stripping off her wrinkled jacket, she opened her purse for the key to her grip. If she must go out for something to eat, she'd have to wash her face and hunt out a fresh blouse. And then, with dismay, she saw that the key was gone. She recalled that she had used it back at the hotel that morning. She must have left it there. She had set it on the dresser for a moment, she remembered, while she put on her hat. She'd have to go back for it. There was not getting out of it. How careless, how dreadfully careless of her!

Scolding herself, she banged down the steps and out onto the street again, conscious of her unwashed face and her wrinkled clothes. Like a bum, she must look. A tramp! Well, what else was she? A convict's daughter.

With reckles unconcern she strode into the hotel and asked for the missing key.

The clerk handed her an envelope with a number on it. "Picked it up after you left this morning," he told her. "By the way," he added, cutting into her mumbled thanks, "there's been a couple of phone calls for you this afternoon. Think it was the guy that—brought you in last night." He dropped his voice confidentially.

"Sounded as if it was urgent," he said. "Better ring him up."

Nodding, Lona thanked him again, and started for the street entrance.

The booth's over this way if you're goin' to phone." The clerk's voice followed her, and for a moment she hesitated . . . He had called her, then. He hadn't forgotten. Twice, the clerk said. Perhaps after all . . . Maybe he HAD meant what he said last night. His eyes . . .

But she brought herself up short with a cynical little shrug and went on toward the door. The next moment she stopped, a panicky exclamation on her lips. He was here now! Coming in through the street entrance. He looked tall and suddenly familiar, and his brown eyes lighted at sight of her.

"Where've you been, girl?" He was pulling her back into the room before she could voice the protest that died, somehow, on her lips, at the sound of his first words.

"I've been calling you all afternoon." He was looking at her. The brown Tiny eyes—how could she have forgotten them?—narrowed quizzically. "I was afraid you'd lit out on me, and I've got you a job."

* * *

For a moment Lona could only stare at him. The room seemed to be whirling suddenly. Queer specks were dancing on the edges of her vision crazily. Only his face stood out clearly, his face with the Tiny eyes.

"A job!" she heard a voice like her own saying from somewhere far off. "Did you say—a job?" She was gripping his arm with her fingers now, and the room was clearing. She wasn't going to faint after all, something told her.

"Why, girl!" he had pulled up a chair, had helped her into it, was rubbing her hands. "You mustn't take things so hard. I didn't think. I shouldn't have sprung it on you like that."

"I'm all right," she managed to assure him, weakly, hating herself for being so foolish. "It's only—have you really got me a job?"

"The Krider agency has been calling Mrs. Peterman's. You're to show up tomorrow at the Western Realties office at eleven — eleven something Lothrop avenue. I've got the address down somewhere here." He slapped his pocket and went on studying her critically.

"Bet you haven't eaten a bite today," he decided accusingly. "And you've been out in the rain, too. Here! Grab my arm, and if you think you can make it, let's move over into the grille." With a nod toward the hotel dining room on the right, "What you need is to get on the outside of a bowl of hot soup."

Lona laughed at his concern. Actually laughed. "You're always taking me some place and feeding me," she protested.

Later, over a shaded restaurant table she found herself telling him all about Melvin Hardy and her morning's experience. She hadn't meant to tell him. She hadn't meant to tell anyone, ever. But somehow, with the good meal she had just eaten warming her, and the prospects of a job tomorrow easing her troubled mind, her world seemed to have changed. And there was something about this Jim that invited confidences. The sympathy in his eyes seemed to draw the words from her, just as it had been when she told him last night about her father.

"He said there was a blacklist and that a—a convict's daughter would stand at the head of the list," finished her tale, stumbling a little over the epithet, but repeated it bravely. "Do you think he can do anything like that?" she asked, anxiously.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

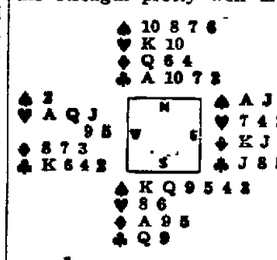
"The Authority on Authorities"

EXACTNESS INCREASING

Probably the most definite advance in bidding tactics of fine players during the last few years has been in their improved accuracy. More and more hands are being bid to the exact spot which would be chosen if all fifty-two cards were in clear sight.

Duplicate tournaments disclose this more emphatically of course than any other form of the game. Not until a good rubber player has tried himself out in duplicate competition can he tell just how good his accuracy is in comparison with other players.

On a deal of this kind, with the strength pretty well divided between the two sides, it would be hard for some kibitzers to tell whether the game was auction or contract. The big idea, as soon as the side has found a suit fit and does not seem to have a game in its cards, is to try to buy the contract as cheaply as possible. The test then hinges on just how high the side can afford to go.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

North started with a third-hand 1-Club. East bid 1-Diamond, South 1-Spade and West 2-Hearts. Since the partner of each major bidder had four-card support for him, no other declarations got mentioned thereafter. North and East passed the 2-Hearts, then South bid 2-Spades. Came two more passes, followed by 3-Hearts from East, then another couple of passes and 3-Spades by North, which became the contract.

It was made right on the head, with the loss of two diamonds, a heart and a spade, producing a score of 140—90 for tricks plus 50 for contract. West would either make the 3-Hearts which got bid, or go down one, dependent on how the clubs were played, but in either event neither opponent could very well have afforded to double this.

In brief, each side had bid what it should, no more and no less, and the same thing exactly occurred at nearly all other tables in the game.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If North chooses to bid 1-Spade in opening the bidding here, and East doubles, how should the bidding then proceed?

—Advice—

Can He Be In Love With Both?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About a year and a half ago I became engaged to a girl, and was sure that I loved her very much. While on my vacation last summer, I met another girl, who became very dear to me, and I thought I fell in love with her. I always feel more interested in the one with whom I happen to be than the one who is away. I see the "summer girl" occasionally, as her home is near here.

Now, the one to whom I'm engaged is getting rather impatient, and wants to get married. But since I do not want to do that as yet, she talks of breaking with me. Do you think a man can love two girls at the same time?

WORRIED?

No, I do not think it possible to really love two men or two women at the same time, but I do think it's possible to feel a light superficial affection for several people simultaneously. Some of the world's "great lovers" have managed to do this, but, after reading their memoirs, I've always felt that gentlemen were more truly in love with themselves than with any of their numerous flames.

HOROSCOPE

A day of brilliant opportunities for forging ahead to high goals and cherished ambitions, with the assistance, preferment and friendly co-operation of those in power and financial standing, is forecast. These may be approached with assurance in spite of some tenacious obstacle, seeming "stone wall" or postponement. Maneuver around the "stone wall" if it cannot be scaled.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very expansive and productive year, with sound and novel propositions gaining the support of financial interest of those in high places. It is a time for reaching for high goals, with the promise of achieving desired ambitions despite threatened setbacks, delays or impediments.

A child born on this day may be talented, original and adventurous, and should have high ambitions which will be recognized by superiors and those in power.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

"There was no withstanding that request of my uncle, the king, to repeat to him the conversation between my father and my mother which I had overheard two nights before they went out of my life."

"I had no difficulty remembering every word," he said. "They were all etched upon my memory, and I repeated them to the king as if I were a parrot.

"He said no word until I had finished, only watched me intently. Then, after a minute, he put a question in a kinder voice than he had yet used.

"Weren't you—frightened?" he asked.

"'I was for a little while,' I told him, 'and then I fell asleep, and when I awakened my mother was standing by my bed laughing and saying that it was my birthday, and that I was to play with her all day. When I told her what I had heard, she said that I was having nightmares again, and not to think any more about it.'

"He was silent for another long minute, and I know now that he was debating just what to tell me. Finally he looked around, sat down in a chair, and beckoned me to come close to him. I know that it must have cost him something to put his hand upon my shoulder in a kindly gesture, but he did not falter.

"'My boy,' he said. 'You must be brave and take without flinching what I have to tell you. Those words were no nightmare, but the truth. Your father and mother have gone away—where I do not know.' 'But in all probability, you will never see them again.'

"I had expected a blow, and I did not flinch from it.

"'You are too young to know what this all means,' he said, 'but there are some things which you must hear now, and never forget again. When you are older, I will tell you the reasons for my commands.

"'In the first place,' he went on slowly, 'your name from this minute on is Philip Schaumbein. Will you say it over for me three times so that I may know you have it correctly?'

"Mechanically I obeyed him. 'Philip Schaumbein, Philip Schaumbein, Philip Schaumbein,' I droned, hating the sound of the surname, but grateful that I had been allowed to keep the name by which my mother had called me.

"Very good, he commented, then went on.

"'Your father and mother were named Johann and Marie Schaumbein,' he told me. "I mean the fictitious father and mother I am now giving you. You are never to speak again of your own, even to me.'

"Something in me rebelled.

"'Not even to my nurse? I asked.

"He considered a moment, frowning.

"'Yes, you may talk to your nurse about them for a time, but to no one else,' he conceded.

"'If anyone asks you, which few will, you are to say that your father and mother have been killed in an automobile accident, and that the king, whose playfellow your father was, has brought you to court to be a companion for his son.

"'Remember,' he said sternly, 'the crown prince does not guess that you are his cousin. You must never let him suspect that you are.'

"'I will remember,' I said slowly.

"'You are a very discreet lad, I see,' he told me next, 'and I am pleased with you. Now I will tell you what you have not asked. My son's name is Rudolph. You will see him tomorrow, and you and he will always be under the care of Count Wilhelm Preiss, who brought you to me just now.'

"He rose from his chair, and I knew instinctively that he was finished with me.

"'You will see very little of me,' he said, 'for I am a very busy man. You will be Rudolph's constant companion, except, naturally, when he comes to see his mother and me. Then you must stay with your nurse, and later with Count Wilhelm.'"

CO-ED CO-OPS URGED

BERKELEY, Cal. — (U.P.) — The California Honor Students' association has asked students and administration officials to consider co-operative co-educational dormitories before taking steps to establish a university dormitory system. The association estimates that 5,000 undergraduates are "socially lost" through lack of social facilities which the co-educational dormitories would overcome.

NEW JOB RULE

Method of Calculating State Compensation Changed.

The Ohio Unemployment Compensation commission today adopted a new rule for the calculation of weekly wages upon which insurance benefits are to be paid, Maurice K. Wells, manager of the Mansfield district office announced.

"The new rule provides that the worker's most recent full-time weekly wage in the last completed calander quarter be used as the basis for determining weekly wage," Wells said.

"In cases where the average weekly wage is not determinable on this basis, the total earnings is to be divided by the number of weeks in employment."

He pointed out that all benefits which have been paid under the commission's old ruling will be automatically re-determined but that it would not be necessary for claimants to file new applications.

Tygers Deserve Recognition In Tournament Dope on Record, Marred By Only Six Defeats; Margin of Losses Average Three Points.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

BELLEVUE REDMEN may succeed the Mansfield Tygers as district basketball champions as the majority of the sports writers are predicting, but Coach Russ Murphy's young men of the court sport a record that none of their rivals in the Sandusky elimination opening this week-end can match.

A number of the district rivals pack more impressive won and lost records, but when the class of opponents and margins of defeats are concerned, the Tygers need not take a back seat to any of the tournament teams.

This does not mean that the Tygers are cinches to retain their laurels. One off night can throw them out of the running, but Mansfield deserves considerably more attention in the pre-tournament dope than it is receiving.

Judging from the comment of the experts in the district, Bellevue is almost a certainty to annex this year's crown. The Redmen have compiled an enviable record, but their defeat of the Tygers on the Mansfield court has guided the sentiment to a great extent.

Whether Bellevue is a good tournament team has not been considered. Bellevue plays a "running" game, a type of basketball not recommended for tournament play unless a team is blessed with great reserve strength. The Redmen are strong physically, it cannot be denied, but their reserve strength is only ordinary, we understand.

Mansfield is also unproven in tournament play, for that matter, but the Tygers' style of play is better fitted than Bellevue's, persons who know their basketball contend. Of course, anything can happen in tournament play, and Bellevue's stamina may offset any advantages which other foes may possess.

Tournament opponents will hold more respect for Mansfield than last year when the Tygers invaded Sandusky with a won and lost record no better than this season's. The Tygers were not seriously considered last season because their record did not compare with several of their rivals. The foes merely made the mistake of not considering the fact that the Tygers played a tougher schedule. They will not make the same mistake this year.

Mansfield Foes Fare Well During Season.

MANSFIELD has dropped six games this season. All of the defeats were suffered at the hands of outstanding foes, and the margin of the setbacks averaged three points per game, with four of the losses coming on foreign courts.

If it is true that the home team has an advantage of 10 points on a visiting club, then Mansfield's record is even more remarkable.

The Tygers lost at Cleveland West by one point in an overtime, bowed to Canton McKinley by seven points, the worst defeat of the season; fell before New Philadelphia on a last-second basket and took it on the chin at Massillon by a point in an overtime period.

Virtually all of the teams the Tygers faced this season compiled remarkable records. Cleveland West, for instance, won the west section of the Senate race and Akron West annexed its league title. It is needless to emphasize the class of such foes as Canton, Massillon, New Philly and Hamilton.

Ted Williams Can't Miss, Experts Say.

EDDIE BRIETZ SAYS: Baseball men can't see how Ted Williams, slugger from St. Paul, can miss with the Red Sox this season. . . . The Dodgers are saving Burleigh Grimes' old number (13) for Van Mungo, if and when he shows up. . . . Rudy York's decision to transfer from an outfielder to a catcher disappointed American league sluggers who were looking forward to bouncing a few off his dome this summer. . . . Illinois editors might check to see if a college basketball coach out there got the air last week because he kicked three members of the same frat off his squad. . . . Table Tennis Tournament Opens At 'Y' Thursday

Fifteen players have entered the City Table Tennis tournament which will open at the Y. M. C. A. at 7 o'clock Thursday evening, Dr. D. A. Weir, chairman of the tournament, said today. Entries will be open until Wednesday evening for the city finals.

The tournament will be an open affair this year with Frank Balbaugh, 1938 champion, not in the running. Balbaugh has retired from the field of play and will not participate in the matches. Don Cram, runner-up to Balbaugh for the singles title last year, stated today that he will not participate in the City tournament.

Ellison Favorite.

Among the favorites of the tournament will be Robert Ellison, 1937 champion and Robert Keefe, youthful player, who took part in the Central Ohio Open tournament at Columbus two weeks ago.

Due to the fact that no doubles teams have entered as yet the drawings for this division will not be made until Thursday evening. Four tables will be set up to handle the many matches necessary to decide the championship

Players wishing to enter the singles or doubles division are requested to get in touch with Cram at the Y. M. C. A. as soon as possible. Players who have filed their entries are George Percy, Fritz Vogel, Robert Ellison, Robert Lace, Marion Ward, Fred Simon, Robert Keefe, Clarence Hien, D. A. Weir, Ruland Isaly, Nick White, Harvey Bailey, Ned Brooks, Lowell Bourns, Paul Houston, Robert Davis.

Mephisto-Kudo Bout Arranged

Champ Makes 3rd Defense of Title Here Friday.

The Great Mephisto, who has disproven the adage that "they never come back," will appear in Mansfield again on Friday night at the Armory. It will be his third local title defense since he regained his lost crown by defeating Billy Weidner in Columbus a short time ago.

Always willing to defend his claims against worthy competition, Mephisto turned an understanding ear to Kimon Kudo's request for a return match. "If the Jap doesn't think he was fairly beaten," Mephisto told Matchmaker Tim Nolan. "I guess I'll have to show him again."

The fact remains that Mephisto did not score with his dreaded pile-driver until the tricky Nipponese matman had been weakened by a back injury sustained when he struck the apron of the ring in a fall outside the ropes. Kudo adopted the attitude that this occurrence robbed him of an even chance of winning, giving the champion an unearned advantage.

Kudo is so convinced that he will beat Mephisto that he has offered to give his share of the purse to charity in case he loses.

Sonny Meder Shoots 670 In Club League; Barbers Miss New 'C' Record By Five Pins

Jim Dunn's 640 Paces Haircutters In Big Series; Step Ahead of Confectioners In Tight Race.

SONNY MEDER collected a 670 total to set the individual scoring pace in the Club league at the Meder alleys last night. He collected games of 227, 247 and 196 to lead the fast-stepping Page Dairys to a pair of victories over the American Legion.

The two victories enabled the Dairys to climb out of a tie with the Legionnaires for second place in the tight title race, the ex-servicemen coming through with a 2726.

The Schoolmasters retained a three-game first place lead by adding two victories at the expense of the Mansfield Athletic club, which came through with a 2735. The Athletic club tied the Legionnaires for third place.

The Liederkranz club annexed team scoring honors with a 2743 total, but dropped two games to the J. A. C. club.

In the other matches, the Baku Grotto won two tilts from the Mansfield Savings Bank, despite a 619 by Pete Mayer; the Kiwanians, featuring Carr's 255, swept their series with the Optimists and the Commercial Managers added three wins at the expense of the Tracy & Avery club.

Barbers Take Three From Newspapermen.

FALLING below their pace in the last game after opening with scores of 953 and 926, Oscar Walter's Barbers lost a chance of establishing a new season series record in the Commercial C league by the margin of only five pins.

Dropping to 854 in their last game, the Barbers hit the sticks for a 2733 count, which is four pins short of the season standard of 2737 set by the Gimbel Confectioners.

A feature of the match in which the Barbers victimized The News-Journals was the mineralite wielding of Jim Dunn, who cracked the uprights for a big 640 count. Dunn connected games of 244, 206 and 190.

Fritz Vogel contributed a 597 total and Carl Willis jr., came through with a 585.

The three victories enabled the Barbers to step out of a tie for first place with the Gimbel team, which took two games from the Goodrich Store.

Chuckovits Sets New Season Mark.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Basketball opponents may halt the University of Toledo hardwood five but Chuck Chuckovits keeps rolling along to new scoring records.

The Toledo ace today held a new mark of 401 points for one season after he tallied 16 points last night as Toledo went down to defeat before Xavier, 46 to 42. His new record bettered by seven points the aggregate of 394 rolled up last year by Nick Frascella of Wooster.

In 24 games this winter, Chuck only once has failed to score 10 points or more. Albion college held him to seven in the fourth game and his average for the season is 16.7. He previously broke Frascella's three-year record total of 988 points.

Buckeyes Gain Share of Lead

Beat Michigan While Purdue Topples Indiana.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— The Ohio State cage team came home today, tied for first place in the Big Ten basketball race. The Buckeyes advanced to the leadership deadlock as they defeated Michigan 42 to 28 while Purdue turned back Indiana 45 to 34.

Both Indiana and Ohio State have one game remaining on their 1939 schedule. Ohio faces the more worthy adversary, the same Purdue five which last knocked Indiana out of the undisputed conference lead. The Hoosiers, meanwhile, play the in-and-out Michigan cagers.

The Buckeyes led the Wolverines almost from the start of the game, leading at the half 18 to 12. Capt. Jimmy Hull raised his point total for the year to 149 with 11 points but was passed in the individual point race by Lewis Dehner, of Illinois, who amassed 19 points in his final game to make a season total of 151.

Lynch counted 12 points for the Bucks to lead the scoring while Thomas was high man for Michigan with 9 points.

In the Indiana upset, Purdue led at the half 21 to 17 and added to the margin in the last half. The Purdue defense kept the Hoosiers shooting from far out on the court. Igney, of Purdue, got 11 pointers and Andres, of the Hoosiers, 10.

In other conference games, Illinois held on to third place by defeating Chicago 49 to 26. Wisconsin dropped Minnesota back, 35 to 25, and Iowa upset Northwestern, 41 to 26.

The league-leading Bowman Street cagers ran into their second straight defeat yesterday in the Grade School league at Senior high.

Bowman, who registered 12 straight victories before tasting its first defeat, chalked up eight more in a row before dropping two successive decisions.

With Moorhead out of the lineup, Bowman went down before an inspired Hedges quintet, 13 to 5. Hedges limited the high-scoring Bowman outfit to a single field goal, scored by Thomas.

Bushnell, riding along in second place, took advantage of Bowman's defeat by edging West Fifth, 15 to 14, to climb within a game of the leaders.

In the other games, Western defeated Prospect, 12 to 7, Brinkerhoff topped Carpenter, 13 to 10, and Woodland, led by Theessen, who collected 12 points, walloped Newman, 18 to 5.

Hedges whitewashed Bowman, 2 to 0, in the opening frame to take a lead it never relinquished. And Hedges limited the losers to a single point in the second and third stanzas to go into the final frame holding a 7 to 2 advantage. Dewberry paced the winners with six points.

Junior Brooks, who hit the backboard for 11 markers, was a principal factor in Bushnell's win. Bushnell led, 8-3, in the first perior, 10 to 6, at the intermission, and, 12 to 10, at the end of the third.

CROWD PRESENT FOR ASHLAND'S 2ND SYMPHONY

Music Lovers Stand in Aisles to Hear Metropolitan Opera Tenor at Concert.

ASHLAND — The "standing room only" sign went up last night long before the Ashland Symphony orchestra began its second concert of the season with John Carter, Metropolitan Opera company singer, appearing in conjunction with the concert.

Every one of the 1348 seats in the auditorium was taken, and others who had not been able to secure tickets were forced to stand.

Under the direction of Louis E. Pete, well known local conductor, the concert got under way with the playing of "Libuse" by Smetana, after which came "Symphony in D Minor" by Franck, both skillfully presented.

Mr. Carter, then to the accompaniment of the orchestra sang "O Paradiso" from "L'Africana" by Meyerbeer and "Le Reve," the dream song from "Manon" by Massenet. The orchestra concluded the first part of the program with the playing of "Les Preludes" by Listz.

During the second part of the program, Mr. Carter, to the piano accompaniment of Miss Mabel Zehner, prominent local organist and pianist, sang favorites including "I Dream of Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair" by Stephen Foster, "Spirits Flower" by Campbell-Tipton, "Morning" by Speaks and "I Love Life" by Mans-Zucca.

As a successful conclusion to the program, the orchestra played as a request number, Ravel's "Bolero." This number featured Chester Fair, well known Ashland trumpet player who played on the sopranina, tiny B flat trumpet, used to hit the high notes in the selection.

THIS and That: "The Little Princess" is said to have more child-appeal than any of the recent Shirley Temple pictures . . . Joan Blondell turned down the role of Belle Watling in "G. W. T. W.," largely because the Hayes office trimmed the life out of it for "moral" reasons . . . Brian Aherne is playing the Emperor Maximillion opposite Bette Davis in "Juarez" . . . Warner Brothers are filming "The Life of John Dillinger" and don't know whether to dress him up with some redeeming qualities or use him au naturel . . . Edward G. Robinson will play the G-Man in the controversial film "Confessions of a Nazi Spy."

"Honolulu" Cancelled.

"Honolulu," the Eleanor Powell-Robert Young musical will be pulled at the Ohio theater tonight and tomorrow and through Friday that screen will be given over to "Four Girls In White," which glorifies the nursing profession and provides several romances within white-walled corridors. The girls are Florence Rice, Una Merkel, Ann Rutherford and Mary Howard. Alan Marshall and Kent Taylor head the male contingent, with Buddy Ebsen, Jessie Ralph and Sara Padden in supporting roles.

Fightin' Sisters.

There's a nice exciting fight between two ladies in "Tail Spin," Madison attraction, when Alice Faye and Constance Bennett slap each other around and yank a few locks of hair. The girls get along like a couple of alley cats and dogs in this story of girl pilots. It is a woman's picture from the standpoint of cast and action, although Charles Farrell and Kane Richmond make themselves useful in the plot now and then.

Medicine-Show Politics.

The new American fashion in medicine - show electioneering methods comes in for a ribbing in "Hold That Co-Ed," an out-of-the-ordinary football story in which John Barrymore plays one of his best comedy roles, that of a budget-bouncing, co-ed kissing governor who parks his band wagon on the campus and proceeds to make things hum. George Murphy, Jack Haley, Marjorie Weaver and Joan Davis seem to have a lot of fun in the picture, which the Ritz will show Wednesday and Thursday. "The Storm" is the second film.

Outgrows "Cute" Roles.

Jackie Cooper, who has long since outgrown his 'cute' days, proves himself a real juvenile actor in "Gangster's Boy," a problem story garnished with human interest. It shows Jackie as a hero at school, an honor student and leader of his class, whose reputation, friends and position all go tumbling when it is learned that his father is a gangster. The picture will be one of two features at the Park tomorrow, with Joan Fontaine and Derrick deMarney in "Blond Cheat" as the second picture.

Merry But Mad.

An extremely goofy household in which Billie Burke as the mother takes in all sorts of vagrants and makes servants of them is depicted in "Merrily We Live," at the Majestic. Briane Aherne, an extremely sensible person, comes along just in time to be mistaken for a new tramp-butler and daughter Constance Bennett falls in love with him. Alan Mowbray, Patsy Kelly, Ann Dvorak, Tom Brown and Anita Granville are in the cast. The Academy prize play, "You Can't Take It With You," is also shown.

LABOR, CRUELTY CODE OF NAZIS, FUGITIVE SAYS

Endless Work, Punishment, Poor Food Lot of Those in Concentration Camp.

EDITOR'S NOTE: A man who read an anti-Nazi newspaper, suffered the tortures of a German concentration camp — and escaped after two years—writes graphically of his experiences in a series of four exclusive articles for Central Press and The News-Journal. This is the third story.

By CARL HARDER
Escaped Prisoner From German Concentration Camp.

ERIE, Pa.,—The sharp tone of a bugle announces the beginning of a new day—it is five o'clock in the morning. Ten minutes after that we are in front of the barracks, dressed only in our trousers; we are lined up for "defense sports." We are freezing; we shiver in the raw morning air—but we know that after 30 minutes we will be bathed in sweat, and the trousers will stick to our weary legs.

Shallow depressions in the ground are covered with planks. Anyone who might be heavier in girth would have trouble squeezing himself through the narrow spaces between them—but the billy clubs of the guards see to it that everybody "makes" it. Over there is the smooth wall—about three yards high—over which we have to climb. If there are three short signals of the guard's whistle, we must fall to the ground; we must crawl forward on knees and elbows, until we hear the signal, "Up—march—march!" We jump up; we run head—until the next signal commands return. But the worst is the "knee bend," which lasts six minutes, and consists of ten bends. This is a specialty of all German concentration camps.

Dry Bread and "Coffee."

Six o'clock means breakfast. We get "coffee," if the reddish-brown liquid can be called by that name. With the coffee we get two slices of dark bread, dry, of course. Soon after breakfast we receive our spades, and at 6:30 the company is ready to march to its day's work.

Each company consists of about 120 to 130 men, divided into squads of 12 or 15, which are sent to different places. If the place of work is farther than one hour's marching time, two prisoners have to drag the large soup kettle along which, heated over a camp fire, will provide the squad with the noon lunch. What food we get is insufficient, consisting of watery soups and rice, turnips, barley or cabbage with a few potatoes. There is no trace of meat or fat, and the nourishment is grossly out of proportion to the heavy physical labor we are compelled to do.

Penalty for Offenses.

We, the prisoners, drain the swamps, cart earth, dig up roots and tree stumps. We must accomplish the work quota assigned by the guards. If we do not complete the job we get punished—we may not get our soup at night; we may be confined in the dark in case the "offense" bears a faint trace of resistance; we may be compelled to exercise during the lunch hour.

At five o'clock the return march to the camp begins. As soon as we arrive there, we must "engage in sports" regardless of our exhaustion Supper is at 6 o'clock, again consisting of soup and dry bread. Then there is roll call, which is followed by scrubbing and washing, polishing and shining. At eight o'clock the doors are shut and bolted and guards take their posts around the barracks. The signal nine o'clock means that night has come, and that the barracks must be dark and quiet.

No Word From Outside.

If you are in a concentration camp you are in a different world. You have lost all contacts with life and with the living No one knows where you are. There is no mail, no newspaper, no form of communication with the outer world.

The treatment for the slightest infractions is inhuman and is carried out with a brutality which is unbelievable. The prisoners are left in complete ignorance of their own fate and that of their families.

It is not infrequent that prisoners inflict upon themselves horrible mutilations in order to be transferred from that hell to a hospital; or to arouse public opinion.

New tops for more than a year were posted for Union Pacific, General Tire & Rubber and Philip Morris.

U. S. government securities exhibited strength and corporate bonds were selectively higher. European markets did better. Commodities were slightly mixed.

Among items receiving the attention of market analysis were:

SEE NO CHEER IN FRANCO TALK

Spain and, in sequence, maintain a equitable balance of power in the Mediterranean.

Franco, speaking yesterday to cheering crowds at Burgos which is his capital, declared precisely that "it would be unfair in these moments of triumph, when even those who fought against us recognize us, that we should not remember those who believed in us from the first day...

"To the sister nations, to our sister Portugal, to our beloved Italy, to friendly Germany, to the nations in America who also encouraged us then, we give our friendship and remembrance at this moment."

Nationalist Spain, the general said, would not forget "those countries which came to our aid in time of need" when the civil war started July 18, 1936, "against Communism and the forces seeking to destroy her."

This first reaction from Franco was disturbing to British and French leaders who hope to win the general from his close ties with Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini, and it provided ammunition for critics of Premier Chamberlain as they launched in parliament an effort to censure the government for its recognition.

In France, Premier Daladier and his aides mainly were concerned with selecting an ambassador considered skilful enough to counter German and Italian influence in Spain.

Laborites will be aided by Liberals in attacking the Chamberlain government, which has a conservative majority.

Franco is Europe's smallest and youngest authoritarian ruler — five feet three and 46 years old. Assuredly he is the big question mark in international affairs today.

Every nation was watching closely for his next move.

As ruler of Spain, whose possessions strategically dominate British-French trade lines, Franco's decisions can have a vital bearing on mastery of the Mediterranean.

And Franco, who has an army of 1,000,000 men which may eventually reach 2,000,000, has asserted Spain must be considered in any Mediterranean adjustments.

Chamberlain's statement that Franco intends to secure Spain's traditional freedom did not satisfy critics who demanded to know whether Franco intended to remove Italians and Germans from Spain. The premier declared "assurances have been received," but regardless of that "the recognition is unconstitutional." tion is unconditional."

It doesn't pay to be without enough!

INTEREST CUT

Farm Loan Office at Ashland Establishes New Rates.

A reduction of one-half of one per cent in the interest rate on federal farm loans to members of the Ashland Production Credit association was announced today by H. G. Olin, secretary-treasurer of the association.

The new rate will be four and a half per cent and interest will be charged only during the period in which the production credit members actually have the money, Olin said.

He credited the reduction primarily to the favorable operating results of the Federal Intermediate Credit banks and the Production Credit association in 1938.

FAIR ENOUGH!

As to Liberty, There's Little Difference 'Twixt Communism and Fascism

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

P-2 — FAIR ENOUGH . . . . . .

NEW YORK: "It is all too frequently held that there is no difference between Communism and Fascism," writes Harry Elmer Barnes, who could be thinking of these dispatches, which have said as much a time or two, to the picturesque wrath of both sides.

"They may be equally un-American," says he, "and equally to be resisted, but certainly there is a difference. In the Soviet Union the benefits of dictatorial rule are conferred primarily on the masses. Stalin indulges in no such lavish extravagance and Roman holidays as do the Nazi hierarchy in Germany.

"Further, they differ in their attitude toward liberty. The Fascists regard liberty as a permanent nuisance, never to be tolerated. The Communists at least pretend to regard liberty as an important human value which has to be temporarily put into cold storage during the struggle to stabilize the Soviet Union.

"Whether the Communists ever will render more than lip service to democracy and liberty remains to be seen, but the Fascists do not even give lip service."

But earlier in the same place Mr. Barnes notes that the Trotsky Communists and other schismatics, all claiming to be true Marxian fundamentalists, contemptuously refer to the governing party in Russia and its accredited American branch as Stalin Fascists, and he could have quoted from their arguments to the distress of his own contention.

* * *

For the Trotsky Communists, though they may be read out of the party or shot for dissenting, made out a strong case of similarity between the nationalized or local Communism of Stalin and the ever-more Bolshevistic Nazism of Adolf Hitler. It may be that neither is true Communism, but that would be immaterial in a discussion of their mutual likeness.

He concedes that they are both dictatorial, and I think the matter of Hitler's extravagance in bunting, courts of honor and all such circus work may be reduced to a petty difference hardly worth the mention by a Ph. D.

There was a time when the Russians also rolled out the red carpet, beat the drums and blew the trumpets to hop up the spirit and imagination of the clods.

Moreover, if a man is dictator he claims to know best, and if Stalin thought it wise to do so he cold hold big parades and Roman holidays in Moscow without embarrassment to his Communism.

* * *

Mr. Barnes suggests a belief that in Germany the benefits of the dictatorial rule are conferred on the rich and middle class. There is a trap in that. You are asked to concede that the masses do receive the benefits of the dictatorial rule in Russia before proceeding to inquire who receives them in Germany.

But the testimony holds, on the contrary, that they went through years of sacrifice and woe and that now, when there are a few spare shoes, there are also classes in Russia.

It may hurt to admit it, but the German masses have profited as much or more in material things.

But the kernel of the discussion is the wishful distinction between the Fascist repudiation of liberty and the pretense of the Russian dictatorship that liberty has been suspended only temporarily.

For the time being, then, as to liberty, there is nothing to choose between Communism and Hitler's Bolshevism, and Dr. Barnes places greater store by lip service to liberty than one would expect of a man so highly learned.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Sing a song of censors, a pocketful of lye, there are certain movie lensers would like to see 'em fry. . . .

The only difference between "Yes My Darling Daughter" and some of the other flickers passed by the good New York board is that the forbidden one shows the heroine talking the matter over with mamma and grandma before she goes to spend the night . . . And when she spends the night, she does it as innocuously as (say) Gable and Colbert in "It Happened One Night"—in which it didn't happen either!

And speaking of censors. . . .

There's a chap named Gustav Machaty making a movie out here today, and I'll bet nine out of ten fans can't place the name . . . He's the fellow who directed "Ecstasy" in which a gal later named Hedy Lamarr became famous. . . . Machaty (you can say it Mockuhty if you like) has been buried in Hollywood. . . . Made a short or two, now is directing an 18-day flicker called "Within the Law" which in its day, I believe, shocked theatergoers as much as "Ecstasy" shocked some censors. . . .

* * *

"Within the Law" has been filmed about three times before, and its power to shock has waned with the changing of times and manners. . . . With a cast including pretty Ruth Hussey and newcomer Tom Neal, plus a revamped script, "Within the Law" ought to be as exciting morally as a Hardy family epic—unless Machaty, despite a quickie shooting schedule, manages to slip in some Machaty magic. . . . He has permission to essay a little "silent treatment" on the big courtroom sequence, but for protection he's shooting it with dialogue also. . . . "Ecstasy" was virtually a silent picture, and the director hopes to achieve a repeat of the technique on a courtroom set, which is naturally the talkiest place in the talkies. . .

* * *

Howard Hawks and Josef von Sternberg were assigned once to work together on a movie. . . . Within a week the two directors had branched out in different directions, and the upshot was they called the whole thing off. . . . Later (under W. S. Van Dyke) it came forth as "The Prizefighter and the Lady," with Myrna Loy and Max Baer. . . . Which is just another proof of the notion that no two directors work alike—or that given the same story, half a dozen directors would make half a dozen different pictures from it. . . .

Anyway, von Sternberg is off again on one called "Sergeant Madden," starring Wallace Beery . . . Inside on the advice given Joe from the front office before production started: "Beery has been playing Beery for 26 years—for Pete's sake don't try to give us 'new Wallace Beery!'"

Annabella and Robert Young and Walter Connolly are together in "Maiden Voyage. . . . Annabella's accent has decreased beautifully, but you still have to listen carefully. . . . On the set today Walter Connolly, playing a psychiatrist, was giving all his lines in a strange falsetto . . . For comedy effect, they told me. . . . But it sounds as if they're trying to make the audience work as hard on Connolly as on Annebella, so the pretty French girl won't seem to be the only one speaking Esperanto or what-isi-it?

'Lovers Lane' Deaths Prompt Quiz Demand

SCHOOLGIRL, 16, BOY, 18, FOUND DEAD IN AUTO

Illinois Coroner Says School Conditions 'Shocking'; Takes Steps for Inquiry.

(By International News Service)

JOLIET, Ill. — The mystery deaths of a high school athlete and his sweetheart on a "lovers lane" today created a demand for a special grand jury investigation of alleged immorality at the Joliet high school.

Coroner Londus Brannon termed condition at the school as "shocking" and said he would seek permission for the inquiry today in the hope of preventing another such tragedy.

The two victims in the strange case were Ruth Virginia Underwood, 16, a junior at the school, and William Engimann, 18, a senior and captain-elect of the football team.

Father Finds Bodies.

The bodies of the young couple were found lying on the front seat of the Engimann family car yesterday morning by the youth's father, Arthur Engimann, a retired dairy owner, who had become alarmed and begun the search when his son failed to return from a "date" with the girl the night before.

The girl was nude except for her stockings and shoes. Her neck had been twisted and the coroner expressed the belief she had been choked to death. Young Engimann was believed to have died from carbon monoxide poisoning.

The coroner said it was likely that the husky youth had accidentally strangled the girl in a passionate embrace and upon realizing she had been fatally hurt remained in the car to die.

The boy's father, however, said he did not believe his son had committed suicide in the ordinary sense of the word.

"I think he just didn't know what to do when he found out Ruth was dead. We know he loved her very much and that when he saw he had killed her without knowing what he had done, he just sat there stupified until overcome by the gas."

School officials denied Coroner Brannon's charges of laxity at the institution. In the absence of Dr. William W. Haggard, the principal, who was at a convention in Cleveland, Dr. Marion K. Knowles, president of the school board declared:

"The charges are purely slanderous and a fabrication. I have heard rumors now and then but they are not supported by fact."

The body was removed to the Jones funeral home where services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Thursday, with burial in the Shauck cemetery.

CARDINALS SET TO ELECT POPE

Authoritative Church Opinion Agrees New Pontiff Will Probably Be Italian.

(By United Press)

VATICAN CITY—The 62 cardinals of the Catholic church will file through a single doorway tomorrow into walled isolation in the center of the Vatican from where one of them will emerge as the 262nd ruler of the church.

With few deviations from the traditional methods, which date back to the end of the 13th century, the sacred college of cardinals will ceremoniously open the conclave to elect a successor to Pope Pius XI.

The conclave can last indefinitely. In the 13th century, three years elapsed before Gregory X was finally elected Pope. Vatican observers were confident today, however, that a new Pope will be found this time within two or three days.

On the eve of the conclave, authoritative church opinion was agreed only that the new Pope will probably be an Italian in accordance with the tradition established after the death of Adrian VI, a Dutchman who was elected in 1522.

They are: Elias Dalla Costa, 67, archbishop of Florence. Luigi Lavitrano, 65, archbishop of Palmero. Alessio Ascalesi, 67, archbishop of Naples. Maurilio Fossati, 63, archbishop of Turin. Giovanni Nasalli-Rocca, 67, archbishop of Bologna.

Up and Down THE STREET

When Police Chief Meade K. Bates really gets going, he's competition for Jesse Owens, Olympic sprinter. Yesterday the chief went with federal agents to make an arrest on East Third street. He and a government man were to wait outside some distance while a third man went into the place and "brought out" the fugitive. Just as Bates came near the entrance a man dashed by him and he heard the officer yell, "get him!" Bates took off like an airplane. But his heavy coat was buttoned and before he could unbutton it, his long strides had ripped it across the back. But he got his man.

The thrill of meeting Jimmy Foxx, the Boston Red Sox batting star, and others on the Boston team and riding on the same train with them came to John R. Hattery, son of Dr. and Mrs. John S. Hattery, over the weekend while he was en route to New Orleans. Young Hattery, who is on his way to South America for a three-months' vacation, got his second thrill at New Orleans when he watched a huge seaplane alight on the waters of Lake Pontchartrain. The Boston players were going south to begin their spring training.

To Frank Van Tilburg, 160 Reba avenue, goes the honor of being the first Mansfielder to receive the first volume of a 15-volume encyclopedia being offered by the Pasteurized Milk Dealers of Mansfield, for ten caps from quart milk bottles and 49 cents. First announcement of the offer was made in Monday's issue of the News-Journal, and early this morning Van Tilburg came to the encyclopedia headquarters with the ten necessary caps, and received Volume No. 1.

Mansfield concert audiences are not the only ones that suffer from noisy heating equipment at inopportune moments. A number of Mansfielders who attended the John Carter concert at McDowell auditorium in Ashland last night, suffered "goose flesh" last night when the young Metropolitan tenor was holding the audience spellbound with a fine, high note, and there was a loud "bong" as the cooling radiators let go. Carter drew a capacity crowd and was forced to respond to five encores. Several Mansfielders braved the slippery roads and drove to Columbus to hear Nelson Eddy at Memorial auditorium.

HOPES TO GET BILL TO VOTE BY THURSDAY

Committee Prepares to Hold Hearings on Proposal to Revamp Parole Board.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Confronted by a maze of complex amendments, the senate taxation committee today deferred action for at least a week on an administration bill to re-organize the tax commission. A four-member sub-committee was directed to incorporate all preffered amendments into a substitute measure.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Poor relief and a tax commission "ripper" bill took the center of the legislative stage today in the Ohio general assembly.

The senate taxation committee, pressed to prepare the measure for a vote by Thursday, pushed toward final action on the bill that abolishes the tax commission and sets up a new department of taxation in its place.

Draft Substitute Bill.

Senate committee hearings were scheduled also on the administration proposal to revamp the parole board, with Gov. John W. Bricker's advisers completing their draft of a substitute bill.

An intensive month's study of the state's poor relief needs was to start immediately after the presiding officer of each chamber names five senators and five representatives for the investigation.

House concurrence in senate amendments last night completed legislative action on the point resolution setting up the study group with instructions to report a 1939-40 relief financing program to the legislature by April 1.

The Republican majority was unable to muster the 91 necessary votes to pass an emergency bill to repeal earmarking of liquor monopoly profits for the old age pension fund. Two Democrats switched from "no" to "yes" and the measure was approved.

The house also completed, by accepting senate amendments, a bill directing inheritance tax revenues into the general fund. Similar action on the intangible tax measure was postponed, however, apparently because of the poor attendance of house members.

The senate approved and sent to the house a bill requiring firemen to contribute two per cent of their salaries to municipal pension and benefit funds.

Continue Dispute.

Representatives of cosmetology schools, beauty shop owners and operators continued before the senate educational committee their factional dispute over proposed legislation.

School representatives appeared to support a bill to place the cosmetology board under the director of education. Shop owners contended the measure should include provisions prohibiting schools from charging for beauty treatments by unlicensed students.

BOARD GIVEN 30 DAYS

ASHLAND—The Ashland county school board has been given 30 days in which to enter a plea in the suit filed against it by Emil H. Hirsch in which he contends that the board has failed to provide school transportation for his boy according to the terms of the law.

The court, in preliminaries of the case issued a mandamus by which the board has to furnish transportation until the case is settled, but in the meantime has overruled the demurrer of the board in which it sought to have ejected the petition of the plaintiff on the grounds that in this case, the obligation of the board in providing transportation was purely discretionary.

were believed waiting off the Spanish Mediterranean coast to evacuate Loyalist leaders in event that Premier Juan Negrin and his associates decided that to continue the war was useless.

Members of the Republican cabinet who were in Madrid left this afternoon for Valencia in response to a summons from Negrin, who awaited them there for an emergency and perhaps final meeting.

Sends Resignation.

Azana sent his resignation from Collonges-Sous-Saleve, in the French Alps, to Diego Martinez Barrio, vice president of the republic and president of the cortes or parliament.

Barrio said that as soon as he received it he would call a meeting of members of the parliament who are in Paris to consider the situation.

Azana said in his letter that he wanted peace, that he considered defeat inevitable, that the Spanish people shared his belief and that the Loyalist general staff had concluded victory was not impossible. He told Barrio he had deferred his resignation hoping peace might be negotiated with the Nationalists. But French and British recognition of the Nationalists, he argued, made this hope vain.

New Election Doubtful.

There was considerable doubt here that the Loyalists could name a successor to Azana under the constitution. The constitution provides for an election eight days after the resignation of a president by deputies of the cortes and an equal number of delegates chosen by popular vote. But the election must be held in Spain and most of the cortes members are refugees in France.

Jules Henry, French ambassador to Spain, notified Marcelino Pascua, Loyalist ambassador, today that France had withdrawn recognition from the Loyalists.

Belief in France and British government quarters was that a Loyalist collapse was imminent.

URGES AMITY TO CURB DICTATORS

Speaker Says Dictatorships Can Be Won Over Through Friendship Method.

out the United States being conscious of them, emphasizing that they are less severe than those in Europe, Prof. Rippey pointed out.

"The dictatorships of our neighbors to the south are largely the result of a transition period between the rule of Spain and the ideal democracy and the economic depression of the past decade.

"Most of them came into existence in 1930 and 1931 when the effects of the last great depression spread throughout the world, when the people were willing to accept an iron hand rule if it promised better conditions.

"The Latin Americans have no convenient means of getting rid of their dictators. It will have to be a gradual movement. When Woodrow Wilson was president he tried to get rid of the dictators, but he wouldn't let the people go to war to do it. There are no fair elections in the dictator countries, so the people couldn't vote the dictators out and Wilson wouldn't let them shoot them out."

"Many of the Central and South American dictators have helped the people by aiding the common man and giving education a more important place, but the kind of education the youth is receiving is not leading to the kind of democracy we know," he asserted.

The Latin American dictators usually have their armies with them to enforce their desires, but they are satisfied merely with holding their jobs, Prof. Rippey declared.

"They manage to stay in power by calling their cabinets, or puppets, into session and having them extend the term of office a few more years. In some cases elections have been attempted, and when the dictators found they were not in their favor, the elections were cancelled. After that, soldiers guarded the polls to see that every one voted the right way—for the dictator in power."

Prof. Rippey was introduced last night by Norman L. Wolfe, president of the University club. The talk was the second of a series of five sponsored jointly by the University and Rotary clubs.

One Week's Trial Brings High Praise

"Nothing Ever Helped Like World's Tonic"

Well-Known Massillon Lady Tells How Constipation Relief Brought Comfort with Sleep and Quieted Nerves.

Mrs. Edna Gilger of 115 Hostetten St., S. W., Massillon is well known to many local people. And if you were to drop in at Central Drug Store to talk with the World's Tonic Man, he will tell of, and show you many other complimentary and praising statements from prominent local people and other prominent people in every part of the country where World's Tonic is known. We don't print all the compliments we receive. This would be too costly. And so, on to Mrs. Gilger.

"I suppose there are many women who have gone through the same distressing experiences as I and I can't help but feel that it is a pity, because all such suffering might be needless. If only they knew about World's Tonic. I've been bothered with constipation for so long, and so many things went wrong as a result, that I was beginning to look and feel very bad. Food fermenting in my stomach brought on the most objectionable condition. Gas, acids and bloating would make my breathing difficult and often caused my heart to flutter alarmingly. Food seemed to gather like a sticky wad of dough in my stomach and stay there. Of course, these conditions were not without a goodly share of aches, pains, stiffness and soreness that did not appear in any one place but just seemed to roam all over me generally. My nerves were on edge and I got very little sleep.

"The statements of other women appearing in the local paper aroused my interest and I started using World's Tonic a few weeks ago. The glorious relieved feeling from my constipation that I enjoyed is what prompted me to say that undoubtedly many women are suffering needlessly. For the allied aches, pains and general discomforts of constipation are gone with it and I'm ever so grateful that my nerves are quieting down so nicely and I am able to get some decent sleep now, thanks to World's Tonic. Nothing has ever helped so nicely as it has done."

Skillful blending of roots and herbs with valuable alkalines enables World's Tonic to help prevent premature aging which poisons accumulating from occasional constipation may bring on.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1939.

A theory travels fast until it collides with a fact.

After a slight touch of June, February decided to get back in character for the fadeout.

Regardless of what those New York Nazis say, the impression is quite general that their word is no better than their bund.

Nothing may be done about it, but Californians just can't understand why President Roosevelt went to Florida to open the San Francisco fair.

Much Home-Building In Prospect.

EARLIER predictions that 1939 will prove a banner year in home construction in Mansfield and immediate vicinity are borne out by building activity to date, coupled with announced plans for early-spring start-off of home and apartment construction.

It appears that a number of long-deferred plans for home ownership are to be carried to completion this year and that suburban development around Mansfield will be given further impetus within the next few months.

For the past ten years Mansfield's home-building program has not kept pace with increasing needs for desirable residential property, either for purchase or rental, and there has also been noticeable need for minor or major repairs and improvements on older properties, some of which have been sadly neglected in the matter of painting and general upkeep.

While encouragement of home-building and remodeling is a part of the national recovery program, linking with efforts to reduce unemployment, Mansfield's primary concern is in improving its own housing situation and getting in readiness for confidently anticipated growth as a result of industrial expansion.

Suggestion to prospective home-owners who already have a lot on which they plan to build, or who have been considering the purchase of a desirable home-site—investigate ways in which your plans for building can be financed—THIS IS THE YEAR TO BUILD!

Experiment In Yearly Wage Idea.

AN EASTERN chemical concern recently inaugurated a plan which guarantees a definite annual wage to workers now paid by the hour in a seasonal business. The guaranteed wage is equivalent to thirty hours' minimum pay a week throughout the year. All employes who have been with the company three years are eligible to the benefits of the plan.

The system works as follows: When the weekly wage falls below thirty hours' pay at the current rate, because of lack of work, the company will advance the difference between actual earnings and what they would be for thirty hours' work. Earnings from outside sources and state unemployment compensation are taken into account in computing the amount to be advanced.

The advances, which bear no interest, are to be repaid only when the employe is working full time again. When his total earnings in any week are more than they would be for thirty hours, one half of the excess will be applied against the advances made until they are fully repaid.

This sounds like a reasonable and useful plan. It recognizes one of the great problems of wages in industry—the annual income. That is really more important in the long run than hourly wage scales for work of a seasonal or irregular nature.

Handy Way to Find Out Things.

THERE'S something you want to know. You're at home, reading your newspaper, or a magazine, or listening to the radio. You read or hear a reference to some person, place or thing that you would like to know more about—right at that particular time while your interest is aroused.

You can go to the public library, of course, and find the information you desire—but in these fast-moving times there are so many occasions for using reference books that it is impractical to go to the library every time you—or the children—want to find out about something.

The answer is that unless you already have an encyclopedia in your home, you should have one. Or if the encyclopedia you now have is not a reasonably recent edition, you should have a new one—changes have come so fast in the past decade that reference books soon become outdated.

Ordinarily a complete 15-volume encyclopedia, clearly printed, well illustrated and attractively bound, runs into considerable money—more than many people feel they can afford to pay.

But occasionally there is such an opportunity as is now being offered in Mansfield, to secure an excellent encyclopedia, designed to meet home needs in an admirable way, at surprisingly small cost.

Elsewhere in this newspaper you will find particulars regarding this set of books and how they can be secured. The purpose of this mention is to direct attention to the advisability of getting them while this opportunity is open.

Coddling Dictators.

QUOTING the old motto of American politics, "If you can't lick 'em, jine 'em," Columnist Jay Franklin says:

"We are beginning to wonder whether Great Britain is not going to meet the Nazi bid for power by joining forces with Hitler and Mussolini."

Some other Americans have been wondering to the same effect. The attitude of the Chamberlain government is, in theory, opposed to Nazism and Fascism; but in practice, Chamberlain with the consent of his party has seemed inclined to conciliate them. That means settling the controversy by giving the dictators what they want.

Lately Chamberlain has been wooing General Franco, as the latter nears the conclusion of his victory as master of Spain. He would like to wean Franco away from the general's sponsors, Mussolini and Hitler, but it looks as if the three dictators may engulf Chamberlain. That would leave France holding the bag. It would create alarm in America, because it would suggest that European democracies were crumbling.

Before that happens, however, there may be a new election in England, bringing to power a party or coalition that will take a firmer stand against the dictators.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—The diplomatic nut which has not yet been cracked either here or abroad is whether Japan is tightly united with Germany and Italy in a military alliance against all comers or just merely sailing along with them for mutual benefit.

Japan's seizure of Hainan island, off the French Indo-China coast, could be interpreted either way.

Neither the United States, England, nor France has accepted as a fact that there is a military alliance. There are reasons for Japan to hesitate. Her alliance with Germany and Italy against communism, which means against Russia, is a natural for her. But joining a military alliance against any and all enemies of Germany and Italy, is different.

Japan is disposed to tool along with the U. S. on a reasonably friendly basis and only a foolish diplomat would think of trying to do that and fight England and France at the same time.

* * *

Many Factors Add Up.

THESE things are not matters of record but the situation is evident to those who have an opportunity to question authorities.

A true alliance would strengthen even further Germany's position in Europe. Without such a tie-up England and France can act more boldly in Europe. The persuasive efforts of the U. S. upon Germany and Italy to preserve peace may also be more noticeable.

The Hainan seizure is being watched closely here just now for an important reason: The pressure upon Hitler to make a decisive move is reported to be increasing.

A further pressure arises from within. Private sources indicate that German note issues are increasing. This variety of inflation has not been widely advertised. German people know only of a mild increase in prices and Hitler's statement that the country must "export (to get money) or die."

As to what Hitler's next move may be, only unverified reports are available. Some reports trickling over here are to the effect that Holland is to be the next victim.

* * *

There's a Tie-Up.

THAT would tie in with the Japanese seizure of Hainan. Is this seizure a first step in a joint Japanese-German action against the Netherlands and her East Indian colonies? That problem causes the Hainan case to be examined closely by this country. For Japan to get hold of any large section of the oil fields in the Dutch East Indies, due south of Hainan, would be a factor of prime importance in the United States' relations in the Pacific.

Thus the situation rambles—half way around the world—but the ends tie together. If Japan is in a tight military alliance with Germany, then the Hainan seizure adds weight to rumors of an invasion of Holland. (And England might easily go to war to prevent Germany becoming so near a neighbor across the North Sea.)

If Japan is not in such an alliance, then the Hainan seizure could be accepted as just an opportunist action on her part. Maybe she simply saw a chance to carry a threat against both French and English Indian possessions in protest against their shipping arms to China. And took the step oportunely when England and France were much embroiled over the Spanish business.

MESSIAH PROMISED: I will declare the decree: the Lord hath said unto me, Thou art my Son; this day have I begotten thee. Ask of Me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession.—Psalms 2:7, 8.

"MAKEUP" MAN!

Why Budget Can't Be Balanced

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — The virtual impossibility of cutting federal expenditures and balancing the budget is clearly demonstrated in the recent Senate vote on the proposal to cut $4,262,000 from the TVA appropriation. It is significant because this was the most logical place for Congress to cut this particular bill if it were to be cut at all.

The point is that the House, in cutting more than four times that amount from the TVA appropriation, had included in the projects to be discontinued the Gilbertsville dam, on which the government has already expended some millions of dollars, and which in addition is recognized by all engineers as important not only to the navigation and flood control of the Tennessee river, but to the lower Ohio and Mississippi rivers as well.

In short, it is easy to see that the most determined man to cut appropriations in all Congress might easily have been swayed to vote for the Gilbertsville dam money. On this particular point there was no roll call. It was approved by voice vote.

* * *

BUT on the four-million-dollar appropriation there was no such argument calculated to appeal to senators who want the federal government to balance its budget. Yet the vote to put the appropriation into the bill—to go on spending—was 49 to 31. As four additional senators were paired in favor of the appropriation, the total strength for it was actually 53, four more than a majority of the entire body.

The really discouraging phase of the whole matter to those who see the necessity of budget balancing has nothing to do with the merits of this particular appropriation. In fact, it is not unfair to say that most of the senators who voted for it were not primarily voting on its merits at all. Some of them were voting for the additional dam because they believe in the government going further into the electrical business. Some of them did so because they knew the White House wanted it. Some of them want to round out the TVA project.

For example, had Arthur E. Morgan been a member of the Senate when this vote was taken, he would of course have voted for the appropriation, despite his bitter criticisms of David E. Lilienthal, and, inferentially, of President Roosevelt, in the conduct of TVA affairs.

But the really discouraging point is that it is part and parcel of the old pork-barrel system. It will be noted that the senators from many of the states which hope for more federal spending on dams and river control projects went along with the majority. It's the old I'll scratch your back if you scratch mine system of dishing out federal money. A system, curiously enough, which President Roosevelt tried to avoid when he insisted, beginning with the first relief bill of his administration, on lump sum appropriations, with all discretion as to how and where the money should be spent vested in the White House.

* * *

WHAT so many people who hope for economy from Congress do not think about in their wishful talking is that it is good business for politicians to spend public moneys. In fact, that is how politicians live. Sometimes it is crude, as in the case of local contracts, with attendant graft. Sometimes it is more difficult to trace, as in the pork-barrel type of federal spending. There the objective is not graft, but "bringing home the bacon."

The local folks admire a senator or representative who gets a lot of federal activity for his home section. It is not just the money, though of course the temporary pay roll is very pleasing to all the local merchants and civic boosters. But there is the element of prestige. Furthermore, it indicates that their national legislator is really on the job. So—he votes for other members' projects so that they will vote for his.

The Flu Returns.

Influenza the disease which first came into conspicuous prominence during the World war and has been a regular winter visitor ever since, is making its rounds again.

Fortunately in none of the return engagements has it been as severe as it was the first time, when victims died by the thousands and many more were left physically disabled. While some attribute the decline in severity of the disease to a better understanding of how to combat its onslaught, the facts are that it probably isn't as tough as it was originally. But even yet it is thoroughly disagreeable and dangerous.

Mild or severe, there is only one thing to do once the old flu bug puts the finger on you, and that is go to bed and take the best of care of yourself. Exposure and exertion too soon after having the disease may lead to serious complications.—Ohio State Journal.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

The Road to Ruin.

By WALTER E. SPAHR
Professor of Economics, New York University.

A DISPATCH from Washington says Secretary Morganthau has told a congressional committee that the national debt will soon reach 50 billion dollars.

Just what, if anything, do these figures mean to the American people? Have we lost our sense of realization? Can't we understand what 50 billion dollars mean? Are there no words that can bring us to our senses?

It seems very clear that one reason why we are unmoved by such a startling fact is that we have not yet felt its impact. The money is coming largely from bank deposits created against the government's deficit, and from institutional investors who must invest because they can find few safe outlets for their funds and yet must earn such returns as they can obtain.

The common man is not buying government securities nor is he feeling the pressure of taxation which this debt should now be exerting upon him. These burdens will come later. Then he will howl. But now is the time to realize that the burdens are coming.

Warnings in every form have been issued, but they have failed to arouse people. Words have lost their force. It has been pointed out repeatedly that the various trust funds of the government have been tossed into the great maw which is consuming not only this nation's present savings but the savings of generations to come. The social security funds have been tossed in too; the funds of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation have gone down the same yawning hole. And yet the American people sleep on just as though these things were non-existent!

It is a far cry back to the economy pledges of 1932-1933 and the warnings against governments being wrecked on the rocks of loose fiscal policies. Our Federal Administration does not talk about sound fiscal policies any more. The subject is avoided just as a family avoids discussing a great disgrace which has befallen it.

There is a silent recognition in government circles that administrative virtue and integrity regarding sound fiscal policies have disappeared. Have we not all seen people laugh and joke and create some diversion to avoid discussion of a painful topic? Have we not all seen people even attempt to convert a disgrace into some sort of virtue?

It is precisely these things that our government has been doing. It has created issues and excitement to keep the people diverted. It has the effrontery to claim great virtues for the mounting debt. Even Secretary Morganthau now says this 50 billion dollar debt is "without danger to the country's financial structure." When he joins those who are now chanting the lack of danger and even the virtues in this mounting debt, where shall we look for sanity?

The present Administration has demonstrated that it knows practically nothing but spend and spend. Its solution to every problem is to spend more money.

Stated in simple but accurate terms, it is a spendthrift and irresponsible Administration. It has lost its sense of values. It calls every difficulty an "emergency" which requires more spending; it has no other solution; it does not know the proper answer. It has lost control of the situation and of itself, and it knows it. It blames everybody and everything but itself. It is irritable and confused. As painful circumstances press in on it, the demand is for more money, more spending, more debt—and always in the name of humanity!

Persistent and heavy unemployment, millions of people on relief, more money into the great yawning maw—that is now the daily story. There is no plan, no program, to stop it. Insistent public protest would stop it!

A Farmer's Diary

Habits of Crows.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE common, mischievous crow has many, interesting relatives among them the raven of the north and west, the blackbird and the grackle, but the most distinguished member of his tribe is the glorious plum-aged bird of paradise. In fall, when food is plentiful, I have watched the crows caw out of sheer exuberance of spirit, and fly about just for the joy of motion. But when winter comes and snow is crusted heavily or very deep, he wings droopily about without a sound. I saw a great flock yesterday, fly drearily across the cold, dark, snow-laden sky to distant woods, in silence.

I lived, during one cold winter, in Yates county New York, along the shore of Seneca Lake. For half a mile down the steep slaty slope the dwarf oak, ash and pine grew thick. To this shelter, from a distance of thirty miles or more, I saw long lines of crows come in from the open fields. Beginning as early as 3 o'clock, the scattered flocks moved eastward. All afternoon the silent, sable stream went toward the border of the lake.

Several times I followed a narrow path that led through these sleeping grounds. I watched them take their places for the night, with but slight commotion. On one burdened white oak sapling, I counted 60. The heavy wind roared along the rim of the bluff, and made such a noise that I was able to come very close to the roosting branch without disturbing the birds. Their bodies sat low upon their clinging feet, for warmth and balance. Their heads were tucked beneath their wings, as far as possible, leaving only one eye exposed.

Often, in early morning after a severely cold night—the thermometer went to 30 below zero that year—I saw scores of crows floundering upon the snow, with one eye frozen solid and white. The suffering was intense, and within a day or two the unfortunate birds would die from exposure and starvation. With one eye gone, the droopy creatures could not eat nor fly.

What's the Hurry?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

STEP ON IT! . . . MAKE IT SNAPPY! . . . LET'S GO! You could name a dozen such popular slogans, for we Americans are a speed-mad nation—and proud of the fact. Never do we return from foreign travel without sneering at the slow-poke methods of other nations . . . and pinning a few wreaths on ourselves for our own Giddiup.

But is speed really so admirable—or intelligent? Friend Charles Dawson of Detroit doubts it, and proceeds to draw a picture of The Great American Hustler which should give many a speed-burner pause.

* * *

THE alarm clock jingles. You dress hurriedly, gulp down your coffee, drive like mad to the office. Only to discover that your watch is 15 minutes late. The office force filters in. You're rarin' to go. A big order arrives . . . you almost burst a blood vessel shooting it through the works. The next day you wish you hadn't. There's a cancellation . . . a warning from the bank. Lunch time. You're still flying around in dizzy circles. Off in a rush to the corner drug store where you bolt an indigestible meal . . . then proceed to waste 15 minutes kidding with the blond at the cigar counter.

Back to a desk cluttered with correspondence. Hurry! Hurry! You must get it all cleaned up in record time. You roar into telephones . . . shout into dictaphones . . . yell at your secretary. A phone rings . . . you snap a curt hello. Then your voice changes—"Oh, it's you, Pet! Why of course Daddy's not too busy to talk." Or the voice may be masculine. In which case you shout an hilarious welcome to Mike or Jim—"Time to see you? Surest thing, you old side-winder. Organize a little game? Lead me to it—what's the stakes?

Quitting time. Desk still littered with unfinished work. But you can't wait . . . you're having dinner with the Bannings. Elevators are jammed . . . You rush down the stairs . . . (wrenching that weak ankle) . . . yell for a taxi . . . curse the driver because traffic's slow . . . stomp into your vestibule.

Where are your clothes? Why in heck can't you ever find anything in this house? Daggone that shirt—it's starched too stiff! There goes your collar button! Migosh . . . will you ever be ready? Banning's an important customer . . . hates tardiness. If you're late . . . You break into a sweat. Your garter snaps . . . buttons fly off. Then Junior enters. The Bannings are forgotten. You spend 15 minutes fussing over his toy plane.

And so it goes. Rush . . . rush . . . rush! You develop nervous indigestion. Fly off at the least little thing. Can't sleep. Your friends warn you—Slow up, old boy!" "How can I?" you snap. "I can't spare the time. This is the busy season. I'm buying a home . . . paying off that old note. Maybe later."

Then some morning, you choke, gasp . . . the room whirls around you . . . they catch you as you fall. And you spend six months in a sanitarium, learning how to live again—if you're lucky!

DON'T BE A FOOL. YOU CAN SPARE THE TIME. YOU DO IT DAILY, UNCONSCIOUSLY. WITH ALL YOUR HURRY, YOU'RE CONSTANTLY WASTING MINUTES, HOURS. ORGANIZE THAT WASTE! BUDGET YOUR MINUTES AS YOU DO YOUR DOLLARS! ARRANGE YOUR DAY OR IT'LL DERANGE YOU!

Here's a verse by Thomas Gray which you should paste on your desk top and read whenever you're tempted to race—

The boast of heraldry, the pomp and pow'r,
And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave,
Await alike the inevitable hour,
The paths of glory lead but to the grave.

Good advice? I'll say! Then how about trying it—you 'n' me, both?

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—One of the nicest ways to spend a late afternoon or evening, if you like music played especially for you, is to go to the cocktail lounge on the "mezz" of the Astor, where Dick Kuhn does more with a five-piece band than most orchestras twice or three times that size.

It is a most interesting experience, because near the stand is a lighted music board, and on your table is a list of more than 300 popular songs. They all are numbered, and to have your favorites played it is necessary only to have the waiter mark your number on the board.

What makes this even more interesting is that the boys play without music. Sometimes they play for hours without once repeating themselves. I think this is a fine piece of showmanship, because there is something very flattering and personal when a number is played especially for you. You can see people all over the room waiting to see if Kuhn will "slip" on their requests, which he never does, and you can also see them give that contented smile when the number they requested is wafted right back to them. But even more important than anything so far mentioned is the music itself. It's—just right.

SPEAKING of coincidences: From George Ross' column: "If you care for coincidences you may be amused by the fact that the Plymouth theater, where "Abe Lincoln" is being presented, has on one side the Booth theater, and on the other the Lincoln hotel.

From George Tucker's column: "'Abe Lincoln in Illinois' is easily the dramatic hit of the year. It may be a coincidence, but the Plymouth theater, where 'Abe' is presented, is flanked by the Booth theater on one side and the Lincoln hotel on the other."

From Walter Winchell's column: "Raymond Massey is playing 'Abe Lincoln' at the Plymouth theater on West 45th street. . . . The Plymouth is bordered on the left by the Lincoln hotel—on the right by a theater named 'The Booth'."

Gee, fellows, it looks as if we've all been listening to the siren voice of the same press agent.

THIS was overheard in a bookstore. The girl behind the counter evidently knew the man she was waiting on, for he asked: "Have you seen Joe lately?"

"No, I haven't," she replied. "I only had one engagement with him. Joe's funny, you know. We went to a dance out at Ranger, which is about 10 miles, and coming in I was tired and somehow I fell asleep. We were all the way back in town before I wakened, and I don't think Joe liked it very much. I think he thought I was bored. But I wasn't. I did my best to sparkle for him all the rest of the evening, but after we had something to eat he took me home, and he never came back."

"Dear George," writes Gene Fornshell, "all Will Porter hounds, such as Howard Rhoades, myself, Russ Cole, and others, feel pretty badly when you-all make references to O'Henry. We feel, deep in our hearts, that you-all mean O. Henry. Please, Georgie, keep your nose and column clean in the future. This, of course, is all in a spirit of helpfulness. Fo'give me."

Will someone kindly lend me a revolver and show me where the bathroom is?
